

DISTRACTED DRIVING

THINK ABOUT IT, YOU'RE DRIVING A MISSILE

You steer tons of metal and product down the highway at 60 miles per hour. It seems normal, but when you think about it, that kind of weight – at that kind of speed – could be lethal.

It's Seriously Not Worth It

At your speed, you're going about 100 feet every second! That means even a casual check of an email or text could put you off by hundreds of feet before you even know it.

Just Catch 'em Later

Some text is not more important than the damage you could do (to yourself, your family if you're gone, someone else who didn't deserve it, or their family when they're gone) with that missile you're driving.
